Dear Mr. Bello:

As you will see, I have gone over this. Rather than apologize for meddling in so many details I will just recall your prearrogative of ignoring whatever you think deserves to be. Would it be asking too much to have these notes back for my own amusement when you are through with them?

Should you need to get in touch with me later this month (you mentioned something about a caption), I should mention I will be in London from about the 10th to the 22d for a meeting of the Society of General Microbiology. If necessary cable me at the Ciba Foundation, 41 Portland Place, W.1., and copy to Palo Alto.

Thank you for the invitation while you were here; we were tied up.

Are you doing a specific article on space science? There has been so much publicity given to nonsense in this field that solid work (and workers) deserve to be recognized. The Tiroso just launched should come to be a tremendously important milestone in science.

Sincerely,

Joshua Lederberg
